MEDICINAL

Atlantic Electropies: Gentlemen—For the past five years my wife has been a sufferer from dyspesis. So completely did the disease make a wrack of her former self-that life was almost desselfed of. Her nervous system was almost entirely destroyed, and the stightest noise would take were into a nervous spaam, which would last to hears. Medical skill failed to bring any relief.

Through the recommendation of an eminent divise we were induced to try the Electropoise.
After a persistent use of the instrument, the effect After a persistent use of the instrument, the effect has been wonderful. Her nervous system has been restored to its almost normal condition; her digestion is wonderfully improved; she is rapidly gaining in flesh; and, unce the whole, is making a rapid recovery, which speaks volumes for the wenderful carative powers of the Electropoise, as her one was considered hopeless. If any are akspical on the subject, let them try the Electropoise, and its wonderful powers will quickly dispel all doubt. Yours truly, W. M. PROFST.

Blessed with the Stigmata

Mrs. Mary Stuckenberg, a young woman who lives with her husband, at Louisville, Ky., claims to be "blessed with the sligmaia," or the marks of the wounds of the Saviour.

On every Friday since May last she has fallen into a trance. A spot appears in the ralm of each of her hands, the insteps of each of her feet and on her left side. Drops of blood coze from the unbroken skin. The young woman is a devout Oatholic, and her family believe that she has been marked as was St. Francis of Assissi, and the celebrated Louise Mary Lateau, the Belgian peasant gir! in 1868.

The young woman has been a Catholic since May, 1890, previous to which time she belonged to no church. The first trance into which she entered lasted for four hours. The only warning of the manifestations was the appearance of the red spots on the hands, instep and the left side. The marks are reported to be similar to the wounds, described as suffered by Christ during His crucifixion. The affair has created quite a sensation among the Catholics, although Bishop McClockey characterizes the sensa-tion as fooilehness. He has never met Mrs. Stuckenberg; knows nothing about the peculiar manifestations, and will make no investigation. Fathers Reffo and Mackin, the woman's spiritual directors, refuse to

Mr. Stuckenberg, her husband, said that the priests would make a thorough and pos-sibly final investigation next Friday, when the trance comes to his wife. He desired that the matter be suppressed until then, when, if the manifestations were found to be genuine and the sanction of the church secured, his wife might be visited by as many as desired to come. She would be subject to the most rigid examination by scientists, who, he declared, would certainly find it a similar case to that of Louise Mary Lateau.

A large crowd was present last Friday during the trance. One of these, a lady, was seen by a reporter, and to his suggestion that any fraud ought to be exposed, she answered quickly:

"Let me sesure you, sir, there is no fraud.
Whether the agency producing the queer things I have seen be supernatural or not, there is no imposition being practiced, and if Father Raffo would permit it, I could tell you some wonderful things—things that you would not believe. Wait until next Friday, and then go and see for yourself. That is

It seems that the transports are preceded by no extraordinary religious exercises on her part, but a gradual feeling of weakness forces her to take to her bed. This is followed by unconsciousness to her worldly ge, and then, after seem intents and purposes dead, the face assumes a radiant expression, but intense suffering can be read in every lineament, and finally the body is selzed with what appears to the ordinary person convusions. The length of time varies, and is followed by a gradual re-laxation of the muscles, and a return to consciousness. Yesterday morning she was as usual, healthy and strong, and able to be about her work as though nothing had hap-

A dozen or more witnesses were visited and asked about the matter, but every one refused to talk, and while they would not deny the facts when confronted with them. all refused to say anything that would lead to sny further description,

Horned Sea Monster.

Fishermen returning to Gloucester, Mass from the far-off Flemish Cape fishing back tell of a mammoth sea serpent and strange marine monster seen on the banks this season. A sea serpent over eighty feet in leng h, recembling agant equid, was observed one morning while the crews were engaged in hauling their trawls. He was also seen by the man aboard the vessels. He made a noise similar to the rumbling of a train of cars, and ploughed the water before him like a big ocean steamer. Two enormous borns projected from his head, and he is descrided as of an uncouth appearance. The monster made but one appearance, and was evidently bound north. The schooner J. H. Carey and the schooner was a specific to the school of dently bound north. The schooner J. H. Carey and other schooners report that a huge shovel-nose shark, estimated to be over forty feet in length, perpetually haunted the dories of the fisherman while hauling their trawls. This circumstance gave the fisherman much uneasiness, because their frail dories were constantly in danger of capsizing, and an accident of this kind meant death. The shark appeared on the Flemish Cape during July and remained until the departure of the first. The fishermen state that they have never observed so large a number of huge fish of prey on the Flemish Cape before and attribute this to the fact that these fish have followed the gulf stream further northward than usual this season.
